

Short CV

Dr Jean Paul Ngoboka is a lecturer of Language and Linguistics at the University of Rwanda, College of Education. He received his PhD from the University of KwaZulu Natal, Durban, South Africa. As a PhD candidate, he won the Prestigious Doctoral Research Scholarship for two consecutive years. Upon completion of his PHD, he joined the University of Rwanda where he teaches linguistic courses and is the coordinator of language and linguistic subjects in the Department of Humanities and Language Education. His research interest is in the area of syntax and morphology with a focus on Kinyarwanda, his mother tongue. His recent publications include "Agreement with locatives in Kinyarwanda: a comparative analysis" (2018) with Jochen Zeller, "Locative markers as determiners in Kinyarwanda" (2017), "The conjoint/disjoint alternation in Kinyarwanda" (2017), with Jochen Zeller, and "Kinyarwanda", (forthcoming) with Cyprien Niyomugabo, to appear in Oxford Guide for the Bantu Languages edited by Lutz Marten, Nancy C. Kula, Jochen Zeller, and Ellen Hurst.