Bhutan's Wild East Impressions and Results from Recent Fieldwork

This illustrated lecture introduces the little-known far eastern zone of the Himalayan kingdom of Bhutan. It reports my recent 7 week (Aug.-Oct. 2011) visit to the far east as part of the first foreign anthropological team to be granted permission for field research there. I will give general impressions of contemporary Bhutanese life in the region, and a summary of initial research findings. Our work included mapping the distribution and movement of ethno-linguistic communities, documenting popular rites related to agriculture and domestic space, and investigating the contemporary cult of Buddhist "Treasure Revealers" (Tertön).

Mittwoch, 9 Nov. 2011
